

The Instructional Technology Program at Southern Illinois University Edwardsville is delighted to offer two Professional Development Sequences (PDSs) in the summer of 2020.

What is a PDS?

- 9 credit hours (3 courses), in three-week and five-week summer formats
- credential suitable for listing on a resume
- 100% online, requiring no trips to campus
- all coursework counts toward a variety of larger certificates and/or master's degrees

Teaching with Technology PDS

As the Digital Age explodes and expands in all directions, adult educators must be proficient with digital tools, online communication, and fresh instructional strategies that will keep students engaged and interested in learning. The PDS in Teaching with Technology will help you develop your skills and comfort levels with technologies for classroom teaching. Please see this link for more information: <http://www.siu.edu/~dknowlt/IT/2020TeachwTech.pdf>

Online Pedagogy PDS

Online courses are changing the landscape of higher education, K-12 GED programs, and organizational training and development. The PDS in Online Pedagogy will teach you the tools, the design strategies, and the facilitation approaches for staying on the cutting-edge of online teaching and learning. What could be more relevant in this time of Covid-19 crisis? Please see this link for more information: <http://www.siu.edu/~dknowlt/IT/2020OnlinePeda.pdf>

Costs

To learn about the costs of a PDS, please see this page about tuition and fees. Many potential students find the "Tuition and Fees Estimator" link near the top of the page to be helpful. Because the program is 100% online, it is considered an "off campus" program, which reduces the cost of your fees.

<http://www.siu.edu/paying-for-college/>

Applying

To apply, visit www.siu.edu/apply. For a PDS, you can apply as an Instructional Technology major or as a non-degree seeking (i.e., non-classified) student.

Instructional Technology at SIUE

SIUE's Online Instructional Technology Program is nationally ranked for excellence and affordability. To learn more, please visit www.siu.edu/instructionaltechnology

Dr. Dave S. Knowlton, Graduate Program Director and Professor
Instructional Technology
Southern Illinois University Edwardsville
Phone: 618.650.3948
Email: dknowlt@siue.edu